

Organisational Abuse

- Organisational abuse includes neglect and poor care practice within a specific care setting. This could be a hospital or a care home, but also the care you receive in your own home.
- Organisational abuse doesn't have to involve physical violence. It can be something as small as insisting that a person in care must drink their tea at the same time every day.
- The abuse can either be a one-off incident or an ongoing culture of ill-treatment.
- Learn to spot the signs of organisational abuse, and find out what to do if you have concerns: anncrafttrust.org/institutional-abuse-definitions-signs-symptoms/

#SafeguardingAdultsWeek